Spectacular Home Available in Port Royal

BCB is proud to announce the recent completion of a spectacular waterfront home in one of Naples' most prestigious neighborhoods – Port Royal.

This estate home, priced at $19,900,000 furnished, was constructed by BCB Homes, designed by Stofft Cooney Architects, with interior design by Kahn Design Group and landscaping designed by architect Ed Westwood of GardenBleu. Realtor Kevin Aizenshtat of Gulf Coast International Properties is the listing agent.

With 9,480 square feet of living area, this two-story, 6-bedroom/7 full-bath/2 half-bath home can truly be described as extraordinary.

The interior includes a media room with adjoining library, expansive gourmet kitchen, wine cellar, wet bar and 5-car garage. There's also a detached guest house.

The phenomenal outdoor living area, or should we say tropical oasis, includes an outdoor kitchen and an expansive pool and spa that overlook Galleon Cove.

Boating enthusiasts will also love this home since its waterfront location is just a minute away from Naples Bay and a very short cruise to the enchanting, open waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Is it any wonder BCB Homes loves to build on or near the Gulf of Mexico and all the waterways that connect to it?

Poured Concrete Preferred When Building Balconies

There's something very romantic about balconies. In fact, in some movies the balcony becomes as much as a star as the actor or actress standing on it. Perhaps the best known balcony is the one Juliet stands on as she delivers those famous lines while Romeo goes unnoticed below.

Balconies are not only romantic, they also serve a very practical function, especially here in Florida. When it comes to single-family homes, the balcony allows the homeowner to look out greater distances. Sometimes over water. Sometimes over lakes and golf courses. The reality is, balconies can be a major selling point.

At BCB Homes, the materials used to construct balconies and elevated decks is taken very seriously. That's why we use poured concrete and not wood in all new home construction.

Some companies use only wood to build balconies and decks because it's faster, cheaper and easier. Unfortunately for the homeowner, they don't last.

BCB builds balconies using poured concrete. Sure, it takes a little longer to build and costs a little more, but it's more solid, more durable and longer lasting. An important step in the construction process is to properly waterproof between the concrete and the tile on top.

Another important step is the design of the drain system. Some builders simply slope the balcony slightly towards the edge so the rain drains away from the home. The problem is, over time, a calcium deposit and other materials accumulate on the balcony's edge creating an unsightly appearance.

BCB constructs balconies and decks so the water is tapered to different drains. It's a much more efficient system, both practically and aesthetically.

Unfortunately, existing homes with wood decks and balconies can't be rebuilt using poured concrete because the structure wasn't designed to hold the additional weight.

But all is not lost if a homeowner has a wood deck that is in need of repair. BCB has the expertise to rebuild it – and rebuild it stronger.

So go grab your Romeo or Juliet and enjoy the view from the balcony built by BCB Homes. Love may not always last for a long time, but our balconies and elevated decks will.

Nantucket-Style Home Complements Naples Beach

This spectacular beachfront home was built in less than 20 months for our clients. The home is built with cedar shake siding, a popular New England seaside hallmark, on all exterior walls as well as the roof material because the client wanted a Nantucket-like design. Stofft Cooney Architects, Steven Sclaroff Interior Design and Exteriors by Koby Kirwin all helped BCB Homes bring this remarkable home to life.
