Do you notice humidity or water damage?

Now that the humid, rainy months are passing, and more people are returning to their Naples home, pay close attention to signs of water leakage or building envelope failures. Examples of building envelope failures include wall, window, door or roof leaks; high levels of condensation on windows and walls; staining on interior finishes and exterior cladding; dampness and musty smells; and visible corrosion or decay.

Window and roof leaks can be serious and destructive if not found early on. Not only can it cause structural damage to the home, but it can also lead to health issues for those living in and occupying the home. Utilizing both innovative technology and time-tested detection methods, Innovative Construction Solutions can identify the source and extent of your window and roof leaks and make the repairs. Their specialists will test your exterior windows for leakage, provide infrared imaging using FLIR thermal imaging cameras, and inspect your roof system for hidden leaks in all roofing applications and finishes.

However, diagnosing the cause of water intrusion is one thing; curing them is another. By narrowing down the causes of water intrusion, Innovative Construction Solutions can resolve the problem. If you notice any signs of water damage in your home, they can help diagnose any minor or major issues. Call Innovative today to schedule one of our technicians to come out and help you diagnose any possible water intrusion issues.
